SUBJECT : Soviet Construction and Industrial Production Indices

1. This memorandum with attached tables is in response to a telephone request of 29 November 1973 for indices of Soviet industrial and construction activity for the period 1949-72.

2. Table A provides indices derived from Soviet data sources for all industry, Group A industry, and Group B industry. Group A industry corresponds roughly to heavy industry and is defined as industry which produces the means of production. Group B industry represents primarily the consumer goods sector.

3. The Soviets do not publish input oriented index series for construction activity. Therefore, a final output index series is provided in Table B based on Soviet reports of the amount of construction plus installation in 1969 Soviet prices. The results for the period 1961-72 are extracted directly from the Soviet data. The results for earlier years are more tenuous because of the need to convert the reported amounts to 1969 prices.

4. A CIA derived construction materials index is also included to provide some feel for the relationship between input and output indices. This series is fairly crude and is based only on domestic production instead of consumption of construction materials.

5. Any questions about these indices may be referred to
